statement affords convincing evidence that the capitalists who have engaged in the recent great syndicate operations have made provision for them some time since, and while the resources of the money market were still superabundant. Assurance is warranted that their plans are carefully adjusted, so that the syndicate operations in themselves will have but slight effect on the money market. That there should have been achieved a loan contraction by the banks of upwards of $4.000,000 in a week in which payment as made of over $10,000,000 on account of the Union Pacific bond subscriptions and a call made for payment of $25,000,000 on Monday on account of the steel syndicate subscriptions, and in which a furious speculation was carried on in the stock market, is an impressive demonstration of the new scope of the resources of the New York money market.

The effect on the stock market was materially marked. The effect on the stock market was materially marked. From a hesitating and irregular condition, due to heavy profit-taking under cover of the feverish advance of a few stocks, the market leaped into an animated and buoyant condition, earlier losses being generally ondition, earlier losses being generally riped out, and many striking gains in rice established.

The early strength was confined to comparatively small number of ocks, and was due to the belief in the progress of plans for a great combina-tion of western railroads. The Denver & Rio Grande stocks led the advance, & Rio Grande stocks led the advance, with gains of 5 points for the permission and 3% for the preferred. The Rio Grande Western stocks, usually dormant, sold 15 points higher for the common and 3% for the preferred than the last sales. The Wabash stocks, Missouri Pacific, the St. Louis & San Francisco and the Colorado Southern all responded with gains of 1 to 2½ over yesterday. A number of recently over yesterday. A number of recently conspicuous minor railroad stocks also advanced feverishly, including the New York, Chicago & St. Louis stocks, the Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville stocks, and Lake Erie & Western.

The strength of these stocks did not revent declines running to a point or more in many active stocks on realizing, profit-taking going on evidently under cover of their strength. The smelfing stocks were raided down 2½ and 3½, for the common and preferred, but rose strongly again over last night's The steel stocks were rather

A number of influences combined to precipitate a very active speculation for the rise with the opening of the week, and a heavy speculative profit-taking had been well absorbed by the growing beautiful assorbed by the growing preferred. new demand, so that the general strength of the market has been well sustained.

Last Saturday's bank statement, with tast Saturday's pank statement, with its record of loan contraction, was in-terpreted to mean that the large syndi-cate borrowers for the various consoli-ation and absorpton plans were in a position to liquidate loans to offset any. encroachment upon money market re-sources from other sources. The con-test for control of Burlington appar-ently continued, and was supple cented ently continued, and was supple.cented by excited speculative buying of stock. By Tuesday afternoon the speculative profit-taking had overborne the force of the buying, and Wednesday saw some sharp reactions. But new points strength developed and rallied the market.

The broyancy of a number of minor railroad stocks gave color to reports that the process of absorption and combination in the interest of the larger railroad systems was still actively protecting. Many stocks with a comparatively short history, owing to reorganizations in recent years, touched higher than the recent years, touched higher and prices than any previous records, and others went higher than for some years. Louisville & Nashville and Missouri Pacific is pointed to as an unique example of a non-dividend-paying road stock of a non-dividend-paying road stock selling above par.

There is a conviction in Wall street that this property is to be made the center of a far-reaching consolidation of southwestern railroads. The beauty of southwestern railroads. The heavy buying of Wabash securities remained something of a mystery and it is attributed to various other railroads, including Missouri Pacific interests. The concurrent strength of several of the other Vanderbilt stocks give plausibility to a supposition that the Wabash may be involved in plans concerning them. The notable strength of the Eries was accompanied by many ru-mors of plans for extensive rehabilitation of the property promising large profits available for distribution as dividends. Such possibilities as were perceived of unfavorable developments in the situation were kept in the back-in the situation were kept in the background, as is usual in a period of speculative enthusiasm in Wall street.

During the midweek reaction some consideration was given to the threatening Anglo-Russian difficulty at Tien Tsin and the failure of negotiations for peace in South Africa which were depressing the foreign markets. The announcement that an agreement has been reached between Russia and Great Britain was an influence in railying the Britain was an influence in rallying the

The prospective developments in the money market and a rise in the call loan rate received some attention. But considering the magnitude of the week's financial transactions and the comparatively small effect, speculators adopted an optimistic view of the outlook and they were encouraged by an assurance from the capitalists concerned in great syndicate arrangements in their confidence in the safety of the situation. The payment last week of 320,000,000 in dividends by the Standard Oil company and this week of a $10,000,000 installment on the $40,000,000, subscription to the new Union Pacific subscription to the new Union Pacific convertible bend issue and the call for a $25,000,000 payment on Monday of the syndicate's subscription of $200,000,000 to the steel merger were regarded as ample tests of the condition of the money market and of the nice adjustment of the plans of the great syndicates to their respective needs. This adjustment and equipose is, in fact, the key to the whole situation as has been previously pointed out.

the key to the whole situation as has been previously pointed out.

The strength of the sterling money market in spite of the continued large trade balance in our favor as conclusive evidence of the continued employment of American capital in foreign markets and shows that our capital will participate either directly or indirectly in the coming British war loan. The prospective drain on the money rectly in the coming British war loan. The prospective drain on the money market of the government's collections of surplus revenues is bound to receive attention in view of the large requirements. Disbursements for pensions have reached the high level for the month during the past week and will now progressively decline. Yet the revenue requirements have been so large as to have absorbed nearly $1.000,000. Owing to the unprecedentedly high prices for government bonds the

New York, March 23.—The Financier says: The continued contraction of deposit liabilities, amounting during the current week to $65,727,800, is lesthe current week to $65,727,800, is lessening the amount of reserve which the New York banks are required to carry, and therefore the steady loss of cash is not affecting materially, the total surplus reserve. In fact, the decrease of $1,162,000 in cash holdings for the six days ending Saturday was more than offset by the process mentioned and the surplus reserve made an actual gain of $269,825, compared with the last previous week's exhibit.

The totals in this respect do not rugain of $269.825, compared with the last previous week's exhibit.
The totals in this respect do not agreed with unofficial estimates of money movements, the loss having been placed at not more than one-tenth that actually reported. Operations with the treasury resulted in a loss of nearly $1,000,000, but this was minimized by gains from the interior.

probably strenger than shown by Saturday report of averages. The changes he the items of loans and deposits are traceable directly to several large institutions concerned in pending deals of magnitude and therefore are of only temporary importance.

The principal factor at this time centers in the moyements of, money which are of rather contradictory, character. The treasury continues of gain from the banks atthough, as pointed out last week, the losses thus occasioned should grow smaller from this time on. Some attention was attracted in the week to foreign exchange, which grew stronger and poliminary talk of gold exports in the Lace of an enormous trade balance was not lacking. This view, however, seemed unfounded as the variation of interest rates here and abroad led to technical advances that will adjust themselves automatically.

It will be seen, he wever, that the demands to which the New York banks are subject are not growing less and part of the offered on the other side of the question. Conservative interests look for no great changes in the market. Interior points seem well supplied with this is a chiffing process more than anything else and is likely to create much disturbance. The banks so far this month have decreased their deposits $12,000; loans, $4,500,000, and cash holdings $7,500,000, while excess reserve has fallen $4,500,000.

Just to show what the tendency is like, Just to show what the tendency is like, Just to show what the tendency is like, a group of three very characteristic sleeves are given. One is made all of silk muslin, in a perfect cascade of overlapping ruffles that bell out below the elbow, and admit a bag of soft chiffon to hang softly about the hand. Another is a study in velvet strapped crepe de chipe puffs that emerge from an embroidered taifeta sleeve, and the third is especially designed to show a pretty hand and is a verbatim copy from a gown worn by the Empress Eugenie.

Now the woman who looks upon such sleeves with envious eyes and can not afford a dressmaker of genius sufficient to cope with such charming intricacies, can hie herself to a good shop and buy, all beautifully complete, as sweet a pair of ready-made sleeves as her church, or calling, or at home gown need boast. They need only be stitched into the armholes of the fancy bodice or dress walst, from which she has ripped the old ones, to appear exactly as if they had always been an ornamental part of the tollet they decorate.
